HR EXCELLENCE IN RESEARCH

On 16 May 2011, the Institute for Medical Research and Occupational Health received the European Commission HR Excellence in Research award and has become the first public institute in Croatia that can use HR Excellence in Research logo on its promotional materials and the website to demonstrate its excellence in research career management.

To earn this award, the Institute had to pass a rigorous evaluation by the European Commission Directorate-General for Research and Innovation and meet the highest EU standards. We have now joined an exclusive club of European scientific research institutions. This acknowledgement will make the Institute more prominent in the international community and will make it more attractive to researchers from Europe and the rest of the world. We hope that this will further our long-pursued commitment to quality in scientific research.
